ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF THE ONTARIO SOCIETY OF ARTISTS

The 63rd Annual Exhibition of paintings, drawings and sculpture presented by the Ontario Society of Artists marks another stage in the development of contemporary art in Ontario. To the interested layman such an exhibition is an event, to the critic an opportunity, and to the artist the conclusion of another new venture in his persistent search for a more adequate and convincing personal expression.

Ontario Artists, as a group, have distinguished themselves by their constant application to the problems involved in interpreting Canadian themes. The results, as varied in aims as their number is large, have seldom received unanimous approval, or the balanced critical examination that recognizes that the best in art does not depend on the popularity of particular or current formulae. While, however, the general trend towards new and worthier motifs and creeds and the development of finer technical qualities may be perceived only over a long period of years, the wide diversity of character in this Society's exhibitions indicates the existence of a lively strength of conflicting opinions, working without unhealthy competitive or aggressive claims towards a fusion of ideals on which a richer native art of the future may be reared.
